ABOUT THE AHA, INC.

The American Hippotherapy Association, Inc. (AHA, Inc.) is a 501C3 non-profit organization, which provides resources and continuing education courses for occupational therapy, physical therapy and speech language pathology professionals who incorporate equines, equine movement, and the equine environment in treatment. The AHA, Inc. believes that individuals in need of habilitation or rehabilitation are best served by skilled and licensed healthcare professionals. As such, AHA, Inc.'s primary focus is on educating licensed therapists about the inclusion of equines in treatment. In addition, we provide horse handling courses, and numerous resources for administrators, therapy professionals, and the public on treatment incorporating equines, including "Best Practice Statements" for the therapists who incorporate horses in treatment.

The AHA, Inc. that exists today, began in 1987 when a group of dedicated therapists traveled to Germany. Later, the AHA, Inc. became a section of the North American Riding for the Handicapped Association (NARHA). In 2003, AHA, Inc. separated from NARHA to incorporate as a separate 501C3 organization.

Today our membership is just over 700 national and international members. Evidence supporting the use of equine movement in treatment continues to grow, with eight systematic reviews, 103 peer reviewed articles, and 12 peer reviewed case studies that show support for the use of equine movement on the American Hippotherapy Association, Inc. reference list.
